Inga M. D. Notes.

With the nominations for councillors in Inga M. D. so close at hand, some preliminary skirmishing is already going on as to who will be the new councillors. Vacancies will occur in the two nearby Divisions, filled at present by Peter Schoepf and C. W. Propp, and it is probable these two gentlemen will again offer themselves, but may meet with some opposition.

Municipal Elections

The three members of the Town Council whose terms have now expired are: John Armbruster, T. J. Hardwick, Dr. Outway, and these may probably seek re-election.
Owing to recent amendments to the Town Act, the following is the new schedule:

Feb. 1, 1923—Last meeting of present Council.

Feb. 5, 1923—Nomination
Day.

Feb. 12, 1923—Election
Day.

Brutus, Grass Widower.

They are having some experience down in Vermillion also with the Police blood-hounds, as per the following from the Standard—

Jim, the very fine bull dog owned by Constable Curry, A.
P.P., who has been a grass widower since the constable was appointed to the Vermillion detachment two or three months ago is now a happy fellow. Mrs.
Jim having arrived during the week to join her mate.

Maybe this is what's the matter with Brutus, the bloodhound at the Police Detachment here, as the neighbors say he has been doing considerable audible lamenting during the hours which should be devoted to sleepful repose.

Personal Mention.

Mr C Pitzler, last heard of at Olympia, Wash., is expected back home early in February, with extended knowledge of business affairs, and with the intention of utilizing extensive modern farming and equipping.

Miss R. Wolf, a popular young lady of Stony, is leaving the 1st of February for Edmonton, to accept a position as stenographer with a prominent lawyers' firm.

Mr Laird arrived in from Detroit on Saturday.

Mr M. Ducholke made a trip to Wolf Creek this week.

W. M. Washburn and A. Eaton arrived home from Calgary on Saturday last.

D. L. McKinley made a motor trip to Edmonton on Friday, on business.

Dr. Shorten, Chiropractor, is now traveling out to Stony in his new auto; and his patients may now depend on the usual prompt service on Mondays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Messrs Eaton and Rivest, proprietors of the leading garage at Onoway, were in town over the week end.

A copy of the new paper at Edson, The Headlight, came to the desk last week, and proves to be a very interesting publication, with articles which cover a very wide scope. The enterprising Editor, Mr Whylock, has jumped into the limelight in a very short time, having attracted the attention of the Edmonton Journal to the extent of several columns on editorial page.

Lessons Of History

The political history of the world is one long continued story of struggle towards the accomplishment of reforms—a never ending battle to overthrow existing evils and to rid grievous wrong. From the early dawn of history, under old despotic monarchies, up through the dark ages, right down to the present time, man has striven to better his condition, obtain his liberty, and defend and widen that liberty.

But all too frequently in the attempts made to remove injustices and rid existing wrongs, and in the methods employed to these ends, equally great injustices have been done, and even greater wrongs perpetrated. The history of the world affords numerous examples where, even in the name of religion, terrible wrongs have been inflicted upon thousands of innocent people, and appalling injustices have been done.

Take the Russia of today as an example. History records that for centuries under the absolute rule of the Czar people were downtrodden, liberty flouted, innocent men, women and children thrown into prison without trial, banished to Siberia, and put to death. Groaning under the burdens imposed upon people, plot followed plot, Czar and Governors were assassinated, revolutions fomented. Finally, the revolutionaries were successful, and a republic set up. But what is it? A republic of fanatics, whose leaders hold office through a reign of terror, under which liberty has become a by-word, and whose excesses far exceed those of the later years of the Czarism. In other words, the cure is for the time being worse than the disease.

In the first half of the last century it is not to be denied that the workers of the world were brutally housed, fed, and the conditions under which they were obliged to labor almost everything they should not be. Factories were unsanitary and unsafe, often veritable firetraps; mines unprotected, seamen were victims of their greed, and the worker generally the victim of rapaciousness and greed on the part of others. Gradually, the workers of the world organized for self defense. Reforms were forced. Conditions bettered in every way. But in turn the organized workers, utilizing their strength, began to impose arbitrary and unjust conditions, not on employers alone, but on their fellow workers, and to such an extent that only those who would conform to their particular views and methods, and subscribe to their creed, were allowed to enjoy the right to work and thereby live.

Realizing the power of trades unionism, not only over employers and governments, but over the workers of the world, the "Reds" of the world borrowed their way into control of many of these union organizations. Socialists, Communists, Bolsheviks, all the loud speaking, agitator elements, have to a large extent succeeded in silencing the voice of the sane, level-headed men in the ranks of organized labor. Anyone challenging the half-baked theories of these agitators is denounced as a traitor to the cause, and they gradually drop into the background, while the Bolshevik element step forward as the exponents of the cause of the workers of the world.

But, as all past history demonstrates, there inevitably comes a time when the newer evil, which has developed out of the successful attempt made to right a still older wrong, must likewise give way before those who, disgusted and alarmed over the trend of affairs, organize and do battle against the latest and common enemy.

That is what has happened in Italy in recent months. During the war the Socialists and Communists got the upper hand and when the war ended they were masters of practically all Italian industry, and threatened the existence of stable government in that country. Then arose the Fascists. It had its origin in opposition to Socialism which was rapidly ruining Italy, as it has for the time being ruined Russia. From small beginnings, the Fascist Movement has developed until today it numbers one million members, the sons of the finest people of Italy. The Fascists have succeeded in driving the Communists out of factories and restored them to their owners. They broke the power of the agrarian trades unions and liberated many farm hands from Socialist control. They have taken power out of the hands of Socialistic mayors and councils. They are rapidly putting an end to industrial strikes in Italy, which were paralyzing and impoverishing the country. Finally, they forced out of office through a peaceful revolution the national government which was subservient to Socialistic influence.

As a result of this counter-revolution of the Fascists, Italy is gaining in prosperity and in power and influence among the nations. The Fascists stand for stable, responsible government. They are upholders of the law of Italy, and are striving for the welfare, not of any one class, but of the Italian people as a whole, of Italy itself. It is a national movement which is attracting the attention of the civilized world, and is bound to have a profound influence in other countries where existing organizations are selfishly striving for their own individual benefit rather than for the welfare of the community as a whole.

A necessary part of your diet

VARIETY in foods is essential, of course, but in providing variety do not overlook the importance of nourishment.

Some foods supply bulk with little nourishment—others provide nourishment with little bulk.

Crisp, delicious Grape-Nuts is a highly nourishing cereal food in unusually compact form. It supplies the rich nutrition of wheat and malted barley, including the mineral elements of these splendid grains, without which health and strength cannot be maintained.

Grape-Nuts with good milk is a complete food, combining all the food elements needed for body-building.

Economical, too, because a moderate amount provides unusual nourishment.

Changes for Cruiser Which Carried Prince Arthur Around the World

H.M.S. Renown, "the largest yacht in the world," the battle cruiser which carried the Prince of Wales around the world, is going to be decked for a long period to renovate its armor in accordance with the lesson learned at Jutland. It is but one step in making the navy effective under the limitations imposed by the Washington conference.

The Renown is a sister ship to the Repulse, which already has undergone improvements, consisting largely of heavily increased deck armor, considering the necessity to fend off the plunging fire of high elevation guns, and universally adopted after the Germans showed such deadly effectiveness at Jutland.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

The Only Sure Relief Is to Enrich and Build Up the Blood

Nervous exhaustion is the cause of headaches and dizziness, and it is due, almost always, to conditions of impoverished blood. Tablets and powders, and tonics, should never be taken; they cannot possibly reach the root of the trouble, and are often most harmful. All that is needed to bring relief is a tonic that will enrich and purify the blood, and the very best tonic for this purpose is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have a direct action on the blood, and in this way the headache dizziness and other symptoms rapidly disappear. Mr. Mark F. Taylor, Granby, Que., tells what this medicine did for him. He says: "I had severe headaches which would be accompanied by vomiting spells. These would last for two or three days at a time. I would take one of these pills every three or four weeks, and it is almost impossible to describe the misery they caused me. I tried a number of medicines without getting relief, until one day my mother brought me six boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When they were used I was feeling much better and I got a further supply, and under the continued treatment every symptom of my trouble disappeared. I can now speak too highly of this medicine of it certainly has done wonders for me." You can get the pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Large People Live LongestHuman Race

Longevity Rule As Applied to the Human Race

Large animals, as a rule, live longest. The life of an elephant is fourteen times that of a rabbit, while that of a goose is, eight to ten times that of a sparrow. The whale is perhaps the longest lived of all warm-blooded creatures.

To some extent this rule applies also to the human race. The big races include English, Scotch, Scandinavians, Bulgarians and the North or Tartar Chinese. The average weight of an adult man of these races is about 150 pounds. Next come French, Italians, Spaniards, Arabs, Turks and Southern Chinese. Their average weight is between 135 and 140 pounds.

The small races are Eskimo, Mongol, Burmese, Japanese, Bengalese, Malays, Javanese and Hottentots, whose average weight when full grown is between 120 and 130 pounds.

An Eskimo is very old at forty, and few Malays live beyond fifty-five. English and Scottish men live on an average ten years longer than Italians or Turks.

Climate and food modify length of life in various parts of the world, but the averages mentioned hold good.

TROUBLES ARE OVER SAYS MRS. PILBURY

Two Bottles of Tanlac Ended Headaches, Sleepless Nights and Loss Of Appetite, 8th States

"As a general tone to build up and strengthen a person, I don't believe Tanlac has an equal," declared Mrs. Emily Pilbury, a highly esteemed resident of 330 Ninth Ave. West, Calgary, Alberta, recently.

"For some time past, I could hardly attend to my household. My appetite had failed me to such an extent that I had no relish for anything. I suffered with severe headaches and couldn't get a restful night's sleep. I was weak, tired and worn out and just felt miserable all the time.

"It took only two bottles of Tanlac to put an end to every one of these troubles, and now my appetite has greatly improved, I sleep much better, and I am so strong and energetic that I am doing my household work with ease. Tanlac is such a splendid medicine it is a pleasure to recommend it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35-million bottles sold.

Better Marketing Conditions Necessary For Future Of Grain Growing Industry In West

More grain came out of the west to the Atlantic seaboard before navigation closed this year than ever before in the history of the country. More grain poured into Port Arthur and Port William by rail, and poured out of there by boat than ever before. But the cost per bushel to the western farmer of getting his wheat from his first gate to the docks at Liverpool is regarded by him as a handicap almost fatal to his hope of success.

A western newspaper recently remarked upon the fact that the grain grower on the prairie must send his wheat over a long haul to salt water, while his competitors in Australia, Argentina and Southern Russia reach the sea much more readily. In Canada we sometimes forget that it is our coast, not our interior provinces, which are relatively near Europe.

The west wants and needs cheaper access to Europe with her grain. How is it to be had? Competition with grain from everywhere, fixes the price of Canadian wheat at Liverpool; the railways and boats fix the price of hauling the grain to Liverpool; the producer of the grain gets what's left.

Isn't enough. The man who grows the grain says it isn't enough. Is there any competent authority in Canada familiar with conditions, costs and prices who is prepared to say that it is enough?

What is to be done about it? The people mostly concerned, the people of the west, on the farms and in the towns, have some suggestions which they desire the people in the rest of Canada to consider. They say that the National Transcontinental Railway was built on the promise that it would carry grain to Quebec for six cents a bushel. It has not done so, and gives no promise of doing it. In the west it is believed that relief can be sought in two directions, (1) by an energetic policy of grain shipping all the year around via Vancouver, and (2) by shipping grain out via Hudson's Bay.

As to the first of these proposals, the export of grain by way of Vancouver is rapidly increasing each year. As to the second, an opinion prevalent in Eastern Canada was expressed in a reference made to it editorially by the Ottawa Journal the other day when it said:

"The Dominion Government built a railway to Port Nelson, which is favorably situated as a port for the despatch of steamers to and from Europe, and it has been an unequalled failure. . . . The utilization of such a channel as a short cut between the grain growing centres of the west and Liverpool is now known beyond doubt to have been a mere phantasm."

It may become necessary for the grain of Eastern Canada to open its mind on this question. The west will by no means accept as correct the statements here quoted from the Ottawa Journal. To begin with, the Hudson's Bay road was never completed to Nelson; the steel stopped ninety miles short of there, although grading was done all the way. Port Churchill would probably have been a much better terminal. The road bed was graded to Nelson at a cost of $14,000,000 and $4,000,000 spent on terminals, and the work ended when $14,000,000 would have completed the enterprise and placed it in operation.

Can grain be taken out that way? The contention of the west is that during the latter part of the year, all September and early October the straits are free of ice, and that this period of the year is the precise time when the grain of the west is liable to reach Europe.

If grain can get out that way, what season of the year, what advantage would this confer? The reply of the west is that Nelson or Churchill is nearer a large part of the western grain fields than is Port William. And Nelson or Churchill is as near to Liverpool as is Montreal. What the western grain growers see in this Hudson's Bay route, if it is workable, is that in shipping their grain to Europe they can cut down the long haul from Port William to Montreal and place their farms as near to the market as the farms of their competitors in Australia, Argentina and Southern Russia.

Isn't it too splendid a possibility to be left untried, or abandoned when so nearly completed? If Nelson is the wrong terminal, why not shift to Churchill, which, it is said, was the proper objective from the first.

The west is growing impatient about this enterprise and Eastern Canada must consider it seriously. Canada has not at Montreal a large enough spout for the trade she has to pour out in the future. In the opinion of the west Montreal has been altogether too influential politically and financially and her influence will have to be checked so that Canada can utilize a port of Hudson's Bay and make much greater use of the port of Quebec than has been made in the past.—The Toronto Star.

FTER Pinzie had told his other three Brownie brothers about his thrilling adventure with the Caterpillar, Moth Caterpillar (I suppose you know that all Moths and Butterflies once were Caterpillars) they really felt quite envious and also wanted to see some interesting things.

"And to think," Snookums said to Lorykins, "that all this began with Pinzie lying down in the grass. That is the kind of an experiment that appeals to me."

"I will, too," said Lorykins. "I think I'll try it." "The resting anywhere?"

So the two little fellows started off and the first field they reached they sprawled full length among the waving wild flowers. Snookums was very patient; he scarcely breathed but listened and watched just as hard as he could, but Lorykins promptly went to sleep. He could not help it, for the sunshine made him feel warm and comfy and the summer breeze sang over his head like the dreamiest of lullabies. A daisy stalk near Snookums' head tickled his ear so that he suddenly turned and came face to face with a Lady-Bird bug. She was walking very slowly up the stem, her wings, that looked like glittering red lacquer, were folded tight against her back, and peeping from under them, Snookums could see the ends of her under wings trailing behind like bronze gauze. As soon as the Brownie saw these he knew that little Lady-Bird had just stopped flying, for these are creatures never fall to draw in their delicate under wings and hide them beneath the upper shell-like ones, about a minute after alighting. If ever you see the brown ends of a Lady-Bird's under wings you can then be sure that she has only just stopped flying. Now, you must understand that tiny as a Lady-Bird is to us, to Snookums she seemed but a bit smaller than himself, for Brownies are one of the very smallest things in the world.

"Lady-Bird, Lady-Bird fly away home; your house is on fire; your children alone!" sang Snookums.

"Oh! please hush!" the insect answered crossly. "I'm so sick of hearing that! No matter who talks to me, that is always the first thing they say. I'm tired of it! To begin with, I have no particular home, the whole world is my home. I rest wherever I happen to be and I eat whatever I find that I like. . . . And I find lots."

Those words seemed to pierce straight through Lorykins' sleeping ears, for he woke up and (as he is always more than interested in food) he immediately asked the insect what it ate and where it managed to find so much food.

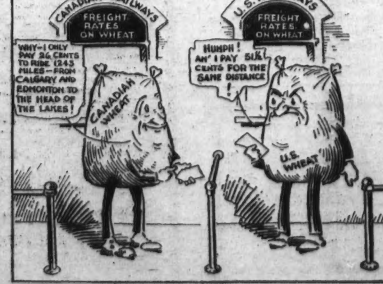

"We Lady-Birds particularly enjoy Green Flies," replied the insect, "and kill so many of these that we are one of the greatest helpers the farmers have, for we eat up all these pests."

"We look entirely different as babies from our Beetle-like grown-up appearance, such as I now have. When young we are purplish-brown worms with six long legs, and as we are then always to be found surrounded by the Green Flies, are guilty of eating their plants. If they only knew it, we often eat as much as fifty of these flies in an hour. People ought to thank us."

"As grub's a month old," the Lady-Bird continued, "we hang by the tail to the underside of some leaf and throw off our skins. We stay in this position as a chrysalis while we develop our wings, and when that is done we come out into the world in our new dress. . . . At least, we do that while we are babies or grubs. We look entirely different as babies from our Beetle-like grown-up appearance, such as I now have. When young we are purplish-brown worms with six long legs, and as we are then always to be found surrounded by the Green Flies, are guilty of eating their plants. If they only knew it, we often eat as much as fifty of these flies in an hour. People ought to thank us."

"It is lovely," exclaimed Pinzie, "but I should think that being clothed so brilliantly would get you into all kinds of trouble. It's so easy for birds to see you and gobble you up."

"As you don't seem to know it," laughed the Lady-Bird, "I'll tell you something that is an unfailing rule. Birds have learned that brightly colored insects make a better tasting food, so they leave them alone. My new going to find a leaf to lay my eggs on," and, spreading her wings, she flew away.

Epoch-Making Radio Fest

New Yorker Telephones to London and Message is Transmitted Clearly

If B. Thayer, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, picked up the telephone on his desk in a Broadway skyscraper and talked to a group of scientists in New Southgate, London.

The instrument used by Mr. Thayer was connected directly with radio equipment at Rocky Point, Long Island, about 70 miles from New York City, from which point the message was transmitted, without relay, to England.

Eleven minutes later messages received by cable stated: "Thayer got through all right." Scientists of the company, who have been working for several weeks on the experiment, hailed the feat as "epoch-making" in view of the clearness with which the trans-Atlantic messages were received.

Production Of Honey In The Three Prairie Provinces Assuming Large Proportions

Women are breaking into every line of endeavor in Canada, even to invading fields previously considered to be the preserve of men. Last summer a taxi-cab company, not only the directors and officials but also the employees of which were women, was organized at Vancouver. The same province, saw the elevation of the first Canadian woman to cabinet rank in the Provincial Government. This year the first woman to be elected in a Federal riding took her seat in the House at Ottawa. The first Western Canadian woman to set out on an expedition to open an office in an Alberta city a short while ago, and in the fall term McGill University registered its first woman dental student. Pioneer women are to be found in practically every line of activity in Canada, and the women who have achieved success and prosperity in the various phases of farming are numerous in every section of the country.

Another laudable must be added to the honors gained by Canadian women as pioneers in all professions is the announcement that the newly established course of bee husbandry at the University of Saskatchewan is to be presided over by a lady of the province, Miss Ethel May Brayford. It is only recent years that the Canadian prairie provinces have come to pay any serious attention to the production of honey, and whilst there is a truly remarkable development under way, the province of Saskatchewan has fallen behind her sisters, Alberta and Manitoba, in this respect, and it is in an effort to remedy it that the course has been instituted.

Official attention was drawn to Miss Brayford when she was acting as lecturer and demonstrator with bees on the Saskatchewan Better Farming Train. Bees with her have been a life study and honey culture engrosses her exclusively. In the year 1921 she gathered 25 pounds of honey from 9 hives and sold it at 40 cents a pound, in addition to several others which she disposed of to neighbors. Though the 1922 crop has not been weighed, 230 pounds of honey were extracted from her as a first practical experiment of bee culture, in addition to what pedagogic qualities she may possess, and explains her appointment to this important position.

Miss Brayford's observations should be of interest to prairie farmers concentrating their activities on large herds of cattle or extensive wheat fields. "I think bees are the most profitable sideline for farming one can have," she says, "for they carry the pollen to all flowers on vine and fruit crops." In her opinion beekeeping is one of Canada's neglected industries, this being particularly true of the west, and thousands of dollars are lost every year which farmers might be adding to their incomes. She believes that the culture can successfully and profitably be taken up by more women.

That interest in beekeeping in Saskatchewan and the entire west is increasing is apparent from the many requests Miss Brayford has had for hives as the result of her tour and the manner in which she has been bombarded with letters asking advice on the establishment of hives. Her own success is built up on a lifelong study of the insects and a natural love for what was first a hobby and has now developed into a profitable commercial undertaking. Coming from the east to Saskatchewan, she realized she could not follow the same methods owing to the shortness of the season, and she has developed the industry on lines particularly adapted to the western provincial conditions, which she will disseminate through the beekeeping course at the university.

Though beekeeping has not yet attained important proportions in the prairie provinces, it is rapidly reaching the status of an industry worthy of note, and there is nothing in the prevailing conditions of that area to prevent its continuous increase. A farmer in the Grenville district of Saskatchewan obtained one thousand pounds of first-class honey from thirteen two-frame hives, in addition to which the bees increased to seventeen colonies. A Northern Manitoba farmer secured 11,500 one season from 28 hives, and another farmer in the same province, from a stray hive which settled on his farm six years ago, has increased to 76 colonies, and last year the farmer sold more than two tons of honey.

In the year 1921, Manitoba had 14,721 colonies of bees, whereas there were only 7,569 in the previous year. Last year the province marketed approximately 1,000,000 pounds of honey, and this year there will be about 2,000,000 pounds to sell, bringing in a revenue of about $400,000. There are about a thousand beekeepers in Manitoba and they are increasing rapidly. Saskatchewan is the most eastern of the prairie provinces and its success in bee culture is rapidly attracting the sister provinces to emulation and the industry spreading the length and breadth of the area.

Sir Robert Baden Powell To Visit West

Great Interest in Visit is Being Taken By Boy Scout Organization

Announcement is made by the Saskatchewan Boy Scout Association through the Provincial Office at Regina that in view of the keen interest which is being taken all over the province in the forthcoming visit to Saskatchewan of Sir Robert Baden Powell, Chief Scout of the World and founder of the movement that all plans for his visit to Saskatchewan are in the hands of the association.

This statement is issued in view of the fact that many public bodies in the province apparently desire to have Sir Robert attend some function under their auspices and address meetings. Sir Robert's time in the west will be extremely limited and in order that the most may be taken out of his visit a special committee of the Boy Scouts Association is in charge of all details. Any public body desiring to ascertain available dates should make application to the Boy Scout Office, Regina.

While no official announcement is made of the date of Sir Robert's visit to the west it is expected that he will be in Saskatchewan in the latter part of April or first part of May.

Saskatchewan Eggs and Poultry Exports Creating Favorable Impression on British Market

During the last year farmers in Saskatchewan have realized about $1,252,000 from the sale of poultry and about $1,101,194.40 from the sale of eggs. It is estimated that Saskatchewan has 3,250,000 head of poultry, allowing approximately 84 birds per farm, the number of farms being 110,000.

In reference to eggs which have been shipped from Saskatchewan, it may be of interest to note the following report made by the buyer, Mr. Arthur Wilson, on nine carloads of eggs shipped to England by the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries: "The finest eggs are being received in this country this year, or any other year for that matter, and it means that once we establish these eggs we shall command a premium over any of our competitors."

The Battle of Borodino

Russians Claimed Victory But Honor Belonged to French

The Battle of Borodino was one of the most sanguinary battles of modern times. It was fought Sept. 7, 1812, between the French under Napoleon I. and the Russians under Kutusoff, about 260,000 men being engaged. The losses in killed and wounded were about 80,000, and were shared about equally between the contestants. Each side claimed the victory, but as the Russians retreated and left the road to Moscow open, the honor belongs to the French.

The village of Borodino, which gives its name to the battle, is 70 miles west of Moscow. It is situated on the River Moskva, and the French accordingly call this conflict the battle of Moskva.

It is stated that 100,000 tons of sugar are wasted annually in the bottom of tea cups in the consumption should create a stir in tea drinking circles.

Her chestnut hair, piled in a stiflen crown on her shapely head, shaded a face that made those who saw it for the first time, catch their breath in instant admiration. Her radiance was of a glorious, compelling, and wholly distinct type, as refreshing as some view of green mountains from out a gloomy canyon. She had eyes, blue in repose, but shading to violet when aglow with vivacity; her nose was not perfect, because a trifle uptilted, but her face gained character through the defect; her very lips held best delicious allurements in their slightly full curves. Her hands and feet were small enough to pay tribute to her birth and breeding, but not so small as to be doll-like. She wore a simple, white dress, freshly laundered, which made her look cool and inviting.

"You won't mind? Now that's good of you, and a mistake." Wade shook hands with her, slowly relinquishing her cool palm. "How is Mrs. Purnell? Better?"

"Oh, yes, I think so. You're better, aren't you, mother?" she asked, as they entered the cozy little living room, where the temperature was in pleasant contrast to the outer heat. "The air up here does you good, doesn't it?"

Mrs. Purnell, a dispirited little person, admitted that she felt very well indeed, and seemed cheered by the sight of Wade, who greeted her deferentially but with easy familiarity. She liked him for his wholesomeness, and she frequently declared that he was worth all the doctors in the country because of the impression of health and optimism which he bore with him. But she was aware that Dorothy liked him, too, and so presently made an excuse to leave the two young people together.

"Now, you may tell me all about what's worrying you," the girl said, seating herself across from Wade. "Something is. You can't keep the signs from me."

"Good girl!" His voice held a suggestion of tenderness, as he rolled and lighted a cigarette, in the home-like privilege which they allowed him there. "That's your way, always. No matter who's in trouble, you are ready to hasten to the rescue."

"Oh—," she deprecatingly began, with a trace of violet showing in her eyes, which meant a great deal more than words.

"No wonder every man in the valley considers himself your own, especial knight."

"I thought perhaps I could help you," she said briskly, to cover her sentimental moment. "But that was foolish of me, too, wasn't it? The idea of any one helping you?"

"I'm likely to need all my friends soon, Dorothy," Wade answered soberly. "I came in to-day to see Race Moran. There's a big band of sheep on our upper range, and Jensen, who has charge of them, admitted to me this morning that Moran is behind him."

"Goodness, more sheep? Wherever do they come from?"

"I don't know where they come from, but they can't stay where they are unless I go out of business, that's certain." In a few words, he explained to her the importance of the movement, and told her of his talk with Moran. "I've no use for the man," he concluded, "if it comes to a showdown between us, he need expect no sympathy. I've held back as long as I can, but I understand better than he does what the effect of the first rifle will lead to."

"You have not liked him since you found that he took that snapshot of me," she said whimsically. "I didn't mind, but I can't imagine what he wanted it for."

Wade's face darkened. "It was a confounded impertinence, whatever he wanted with it. But my dislike of him goes further back than that."

"What are you going to do?" she asked, resting her chin in her hand, and looking straight in his eyes, as she always did to those with whom she talked.

"It largely depends on him. Sanctuary—know how hot-headed he is—would run the herd away by force and kill off the sheep. As a last resort, of course, we may have to do something like that, but I want to win this fight without open violence if we can. A faction war, in the end, would be likely to ruin us all."

"You must be careful," the girl declared earnestly. "Moran is not going to be an easy man to handle, he seems to have plenty of money, and they say here in town that he stands in with the government, that he has some sort of pull. He's clever, I think. He'll trick you if he can."

"I'm sure of that, Dorothy, but we're not going to let him. If only . . . I say, do you know something else that he's been doing? Something that they're saying about me?"

"Something nice?" her tone was archly inquiring.

He laughed forward and lightly rested his hand on her knee, just as he might have done with a friend, and she took little notice of it. His fingers were trembling a little under the stress of the emotion he felt.

"They're saying, those who don't like me, I guess, that I'm afraid of Moran and his crew, afraid of a band of sheep herders. No, or course, my friends don't believe it," he hastened to add when she started to interrupt. "But it's not doing me any good, especially now that public feeling is running so high."

"You mustn't mind what they say, Gordon. That's part of the courage your friends know that you have; to do what you feel to be right, no matter what is said."

Her cheeks were glowing with indignation, and he appreciatively patted his hand before sitting erect in his chair again. It was no wonder, he reflected, in that almost womanless land, that many a cowpuncher rode the range by night, seeking her image in every star.

He thought that each single man, and many a married one, in Crawling Water, would ride into the Pit itself to win one of her smiles, had been Wade's comfort, even when he was thinking of the possibility of bloodshed between the two hostile factions. But now, in the moment of her sympathy for him, he felt that he could not be content without some further assurance of her safety.

"What you say sounds well, Dorothy, but my pride's working on me, too, now," he can't help it. If my friends, who have been good enough to accept my leadership so far, should lose their heads and go to it without me, I might talk afterward until Kine come home. I'd never convince anybody that I hadn't faked the thing. You spoke a few minutes ago of helping me. You can help me a great deal."

Her lovely face instantly blazed with eagerness.

"Can't I? How?"

"By promising me that, if it comes to a fight, you and your mother will come out to my ranch. You'd be safer there. That is, of course, unless you'd prefer to leave Crawling Water altogether."

"Indeed, I shouldn't prefer to leave Crawling Water at this stage of the game here," she smiled reassuringly. "I'm sure we should be safe enough right here wherever happened. But if you feel better about it, we would go to the ranch."

"Thanks. I feel better about it already, more free to show my hand. You are safe enough here now, of course, and might be clear through to the finish; but cheap whiskey has led many a fairly good man astray."

"If only there were some peaceable way out of it all," her eyes became anxious as she thought of what he might have to face. "Can't you telegraph to Washington, or something?"

"Washington doesn't know whether Crawling Water is in the United States or in Timbuctoo," Wade laughed. "If we had some one in authority right here on the ground we might make him understand, but Mahomed will never come to these mountains, and they can't go to Mahomed. Why, then, the matter?"

His question was prompted by the evident elation with which she had clasped her hands and sprung to her feet.

"How stupid of me, Gordon, to have forgotten," she heaved over her with shining eyes and eager countenance, as lovely as a Lorelei. "There is an official of the United States Government here at this very moment."

"Here? In Crawling Water?" he exclaimed in amazement. "Who is he?"

"Senator Rexhill, Gordon." Wade stated almost vacantly at her as she ran on with her news. "He came in with his daughter last night on the Sheridan stage. Isn't that glorious? You must go up to see him at once."

"I will, of course," Wade said slowly, trying to catch his mental balance. "And with pleasure, too. It's been a long time since I last saw either of them."

"You know them—him?" Dorothy hesitated a little over which pronoun to use, with the somewhat disturbing reflection that Helen Rexhill was a most beautiful and distinguished looking girl.

"That will make it all the easier," she added generously. "Of course, Senator Rexhill has no authority of his own in such a matter, you know; but if we can get him interested, he may wake up Washington in our behalf. I don't see what can have brought him into Crawling Water."

"Do you—do you know the daughter well?" Dorothy asked, with feminine coquetry. "I suppose you met her when she was with us last year?"

"We've known each other for a number of years." He arose his face expressive of the delight he felt at the Rexhills' presence in town. "We used to be good friends. You'll like her. But it's strange they didn't tell me of their coming. You'll pardon me if I hurry over to the hotel, won't you?"

"You're East?"

"The girl gently urged him out of the house."

"Of course, don't waste a moment, and let me know just as soon as you can what the outcome is. I do hope the senator can settle all this trouble."

"I want you to meet them right away," he called over his shoulder, and when he looked back for his answer, she nodded brightly.

But as she turned back into the cottage after watching him swing up the street she was not at all sure that she would like Helen Rexhill.

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham, Ont., writes:—"I think it my duty to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me."

"I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctor for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat."

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them when he was very bad with his heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better; could sleep a little and felt stronger."

I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me."

French Policy In Ruhr Is Veering Towards More Milder Methods

Essen.—The French economic mission has decided to content itself for the time being with the requisitioning of coal already mined and brought to the surface, diverting to France the cars already loaded and destined for the interior of Germany and postponing for the present the idea of requisitioning the mines themselves.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the economic commission at which General Simon presided. The meeting was called after advice had been received from Paris that the word "confiscation" mentioned in the French papers was creating a bad impression abroad.

The realization that the French technical service in the Ruhr were totally inadequate to direct a task of such magnitude, was also responsible in a measure for alteration of the French plan. That the French policy in the Ruhr is veering toward milder methods is also shown by the announcement by French general headquarters that the "defaulting" magnates would not be arrested, but would be simply summoned and tried before court-martials, leaving the courts to deal with them as they saw fit.

"We will not give them an opportunity to pose as martyrs," was the comment at headquarters.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS ON STAMP TAX

DEPARTMENT OF CUSTOMS AND EXCISE ISSUES ADDITIONAL RULINGS

Ottawa.—The Department of Customs and excise has issued to collectors the following additional rulings in regard to stamp duties on receipts:

"1. No stamp duty is required on a mailed postcard acknowledging a remittance as such postcard already bears a war revenue tax of one cent in addition to the postage."

"2. A mailed form letter which, by the method of folding, had the address placed thereon without the use of an envelope, requires no stamp duty for the same reason as in the case of a postcard."

"3. A form letter mailed in an envelope, acknowledging payment of $10 or over requires a two-cent stamp affixed because it bears no evidence that any other tax has been paid under the Special War Revenue Act."

Death of Hon. W. C. Kennedy

Minister of Railways Dies Suddenly In Florida

Ottawa.—News of the death of Hon. W. C. Kennedy came as a great shock to his friends and Cabinet associates here, for there were few men in public life as popular as the Minister of Railways. Recent advices from the south, where Mr. Kennedy had gone to recuperate after his two serious operations, had been of a reassuring nature, and it was believed to be only a matter of a short time before he would be able to again take up his duties as head of his department.

Men in all spheres of private and public life join in expression of their regret of the death of a man who had given his best in the service of his country.

The death of Mr. Kennedy makes the first break in the work of the Cabinet of Right Hon. Mackenzie King, which took office on December 29, 1921. It also leaves vacant one of the most important of the Cabinet portfolios at the present time. Since the illness of Mr. Kennedy, the Department of Railways and Canals, which administers the Canadian Government Marine as well as the Canadian National Railways, has been administered by Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of National Defence.

Britain's Living Cost Decreasing

London.—The cost of living in Great Britain in December was down two points compared with the previous month's figures. This left it at 78 per cent. above the cost in July, 1914. At the beginning of last year the cost was 92 per cent. above that of July, 1914.

WHO FIRST FELT "LIKE A FIGHTING COCK"?

COCK-FIGHTING was born with the cocks.

But it is only 60 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now he has brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces, all over the world—all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way: A person half sick with bad stomach, dull and heavy head, and feeling like a fighting cock! Just before going to bed. Immediately the Pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently, this person has a good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear brain, bright eye, keen appetite, and full of energy for work and play.

It is now just 60 years since Bechman's Pills first began correcting disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity—and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated as inseparably with Bechman's Pills as the pills are with good health.

Would Organize The Farmers Of Canada Into A National Body

Calgary.—Tentative steps were taken by the United Farmers of Alberta towards the organization of a National Farmers' Council, presumably to supplant eventually the Canadian Council of Agriculture, and eliminating from membership the United Grain Growers Limited and the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, which are represented in the Council of Agriculture.

There was a lengthy discussion, in which delegates emphasized the importance to their movement of some co-ordinating agency, political and economic, and in the end, the following resolution was adopted almost unanimously:

"Whereas the growth of the farmers' movement has now reached national proportions; and

"Whereas there is great need for a body which will democratically coordinate all our federal political, social and educational activities.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that we are in favor of an organization that should include representatives from the various farmers' provincial organizations, and we herewith authorize our executive to enter into negotiations with these organizations with a view to forming an association to be known as the United Farmers of Canada."

The nature by acclamation to the presidency of H. W. Wood for his eighth term was announced. Mr. Wood was given a very cordial welcome when the withdrawal of George Berington assured his return unopposed, and he spoke to the delegates briefly on their increasing responsibilities and the necessity for serious thought unless their work were to be useless. "The organized citizenship of Canada," he said, "has got to fight the united forces of partisanship."

United Farm Women Are Realizing Their Responsibility

Calgary.—In spite of the reported decrease in membership of the United Farm Women's Association, the ninth annual convention was largely attended by most enthusiastic delegates. The opening meeting was addressed by the Hon. Irene Parby, minister without portfolio, who urged that the women of the farms, instead of becoming depressed over conditions, concentrate on the few streaks of blue that were beginning to show along the horizon. She outlined the plan of the Government to encourage poultry raising and the improvement of the dairy industry, stating that, if the hard times had done nothing more for the farmers of Alberta, they had opened their eyes at last to the necessity of the practice of mixed farming and more thrifty methods.

In the report of the President, Mrs. M. L. Seare, it was stated that visits to some 60 locals made by her during the past year had shown an awakening among the women members to their responsibilities as voters.

This she attributed to the success of their movement in the recent election. Miss J. D. Kidd, Secretary, reported a slight decrease in membership but a wonderful spirit of co-operation among the women's locals to keep their organization active.

Aimed At Barriers

Winnipeg.—Arising out of defalcations of lawyers with trust funds in Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver, legislation will be sought at the forthcoming session of the legislature to have a closer tab kept on members of the legal profession handling trust funds. Predominance of farmer members makes passage of the bill certain.

Fear Steamer Lost

Digby, N.S.—A roll of charts, apparently from a steamer, picked up by fishermen at Whale Cove, gives rise to the belief that the steamer Bretonia, St. Pierre for New York, was given up for lost, may have foundered in the Bay of Fundy.

The French prune crop of 1922 is almost a total failure.

Why Quebec Lady Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

Madame Paradis who Suffered with Dizziness, Neuralgia in Head, Chest and Limbs, tells of Relief She got from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mont Joli, Que.—(Special).—"I have found in Dodd's Kidney Pills a veritable friend," says Madame Paradis, a well known and highly respected resident here.

"I was incapable of resting my brain, which made me so ill at times I almost became unconscious. Four months I suffered day and night. I took 3 boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and returned to good health."

"My daughter also suffered from nervous sickness, and after taking Dodd's Kidney Pills found great relief."

"I shall tell of this remedy that saved my life, so that others might get relief."

Holborn News

The Holborn U F W A gave a home concert and whist drive Friday evening—
Miss Beulah Burger and Charlie Williams carried away
the first prizes; and Bessie Woodley and Harold Burger
the booby prizes.

Several good recitations readings and songs were rendered.

Lunch was served, and all reported a good time.

The Holborn U F A will hold its regular meeting this (Thursday) evening, January 25th. Business, installation of officers for the ensuing year.

A very pleasant surprise was tendered Mr August Burger on Saturday evening
last, at the Holborn School House.

Mr Burger has served on the Board of Trustees for Holborn School District for the past seventeen years, and was re-elected at the last meeting for another three year term.

Mr Thomas Scott acted as chairman, and on behalf of the people of Holborn presented Mr Burger with a Morris chair.

Mr Burger, in a neat little speech, expressed his heart felt thanks for the handsome gift.

Following this, there was a short program of readings, recitations and songs were given.

A dandy lunch was served by the ladies, and the meeting closed about midnight.

Gov't. Farm on the Block.

Tenders are being called by H A Craig, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, for the purchase of the Provincial Demonstration Farm, at the head of Main street, tenders to be in the Department by Thursday, February 8th. The sale will be for cash or on terms.
Nothing is said regarding the buildings, but all feed is reserved.

The Farm has been considered a negligible quantity of lre, as only one employee has been on the premises for some time past.

A proposition is mooted to form a joint stock company, with a first class dairyman in charge, take over the place and buildings, and run it on a business basis. With its close proximity to the City, this should prove a paying scheme.

The local Farm was offered for sale last year, but no deal was made.

Champion Cow.

Alberta has the champion
Holstein cow of the three Prairie Provinces.

This cow is one of the Holstein herd of the Alberta Department of Agriculture which Mr Frank Payne, the well-known herdsman, had under his care at the local Demonstration Farm, and which was recently removed to the Government Farm at Oliver.

The cow is Camille Ab-berkirk Korndyke 32602, and is seven years old. She recently completed a 365 day milking test under the Do-mition R. O. P. inspection with 25,890.1 lbs milk, 1132.5 lbs butter, making her the champion cow of the prairie provinces.

Her highest day was 105 lbs. of milk, ten and one-half gallons.
Her highest month, October 1921, was a daily average of 92.5 lbs.
nine gallons and one quart.

Her daily average for 365 days was a little over 70 lbs seven gallons. This performance is remarkable, as it was made after giving birth to twin calves, and also during one of the driest summer seasons known in the district when pastures lacked in quantity and succulence.

The cow was on pasture twice daily during the summer months.
The feeds fed were all farm products with some oil cake meal added as a concentrate.

FOR SALE BY TENDER.

Tenders for the purchase of the Government Farms adjacent to the towns of Stony Plain and Sedgewick containing more or less 281 and 616 acres respectively. Tenders will be received by the undersigned to noon of February 8th, next.

TERMS OF SALE.

Arrangements can be made by the purchaser for either cash or terms.
Marked cheque of ten per cent (10 per cent) to accompany tender in each case. All feed to be reserved. The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

For further particulars apply to terms and possession, apply to the undersigned.

Kansas horses apparently no longer are considered worth their feed. At a sale held at Harper, Kansas, recently several horses were sold to satisfy mortgages, and the average price realized was well under 10 dollars. One farmer who came to town on the day of the sale, marketed one case of eggs. With the egg money he attended the sale, purchased two three year olds and returned home with two horses, his empty egg case and 60c.

We have made arrangements with the E. H. Heath Co. Limited who publish the CANADIAN POWER FARMER whereby we are able to offer that farm magazine together with our own weekly at the one price for both papers.

The CANADIAN POWER FARMER is Western Canada's biggest farm monthly. It is now in its twentieth year which means that it is thoroughly established throughout the West, it deals with the mechanical side of the farm.
Every issue is full of helpful hints and experiences on the operation of all kinds of farm machinery from a washing-machine to a tractor. Its editorial staff consists of men thoroughly familiar with every branch of farming both from the practical and theoretical standpoint. Every month the magazine publishes experiences met in by readers. Many of these are short, but full of advice that are real money savers to farmers.

This offer may be withdrawn at any time.
Without doubt your intention is to renew this weekly, then why not take advantage now.
Your subscription to this weekly together with a year's subscription to the CANADIAN POWER FARMER for the same price as this weekly alone. This is where you get the $1.50.

Need for the Pound.

Several calls have been made to have the town pound law enforced, owing to complaints being made of the cows committing depredations on the contents of farmers' sleighs usually anchored on upper Main street. The explanation is made that the Department of Municipal Affairs ordered that a new Pound Law be passed by the Town Council. This bylaw was drawn up, given two readings, and then submitted to the Minister for approval. When this has been received, Council will lose no time in giving the bylaw effect, and appointing a poundkeeper with the necessary powers to act.

Articles intended for insertion in The Sun must be in the office not later than 5 p.m. Monday, to insure insertion.

Johnny Miller's Garage has just distributed a 1923 calendar with a very clever and appropriate design on it. It is to be seen to be admired.

Wm. Gilbert of Stony Plain has been chosen director for Alberta to the Canadian Swine Breeders' association for the year 1923 by mail vote of the members taken in accordance with the constitution of the association.

Dan Brox is holding a sale of stock and machinery for A. Poppleton at Graminia, on January 30.

Stony Plain was well represented at the dance at Spruce Grove on Friday night. A pleasant time was enjoyed by all to the music of Barth's Orchestra.

The hockey boys from Duffield will journey to Spruce Grove and play the latter on the afternoon of January 28.

The price of cattle is picking up a little at present—5 to 5 1/2 c being quoted for nice fat 1000-lb steers.

The recent storms have drifted the snow into the roads in the outlying districts, making the using of cars a difficult matter.

Mr. Leory, a farmer of Mewas-in-District, leaves this week to join his wife in Ontario.

Governor School has re-opened, with Mr. Wm. Nixon of Inisfree being the new teacher.

At the last meeting of Stony Plain Centre School Board, Mr. A. Klapper was elected Secretary. The Board now consists of John Ducholke, Jacob Kulak and A. Klapper.

At the recent meeting of Holborn Local U. F. A., Mr. August Burger was elected President and Mr. F. Kimmery was chosen Secretary for the year 1923.

Mr. Mike Smallecki, the well-known athlete, was in town Sunday afternoon, on his return from the big hockey match at Spruce Grove. Mike is greatly interested in this game at present, as he is working on a new hockey skate to be run with ball bearings, also a holeproof hockey stick. Mike is going to the city to-morrow, to pull down a big royalty on his recent patent—a wireless bale of hay.

The farmers near Heatherdown are complaining of having their dogs poisoned thru eating coyote bait illegally set out.

Glenevis farmers have been selling their surplus hay for $10 to $15 a ton.

Application forms for those wishing auto licenses for the year 1923 may be obtained at The Sun Office.

Mr. Gilbert announces that he is running a gasoline freighting dray to Edmonton three times a week. Those wishing goods hauled either way, should phone him, number 1006.

The Canadian Power Farmer Winnipeg, will answer any question pertaining to the practical operation and application of power machinery on the farm. Try it out! This service is free!

Dr. Mecklenburg will be at the Royal Hotel, Friday and Saturday, February 2 and 3.

Dr. Frith, Dentist, Edmonton, will be at the Royal Hotel Saturday, Jan. 27.
